Camrea

Camrea is an independent state bordering Union and Erghrim.

The country is actively courting an alliance with both nations, and in the process, exploiting both for resources.

Camrea is rife with corruption, authoritarian approaches, and worker exploitation.

Rebel elements labor to topple the current leadership.

Erghrim

The Erghrinian people drew the short straw in their arrival to Remith.
Stranded in deserts and craggy mountains, and persevered despite the hostile conditions.

Erghrinians rake the mountains and drink the seas.
They remain when others fall.

Erghrim has evolved into a military autocracy over time.
Political power is attained and maintained by advancing through the military hierarchy.
Citizens are encouraged to serve within the military.

Erghrim uses Requisition scripts as currency, forgoing conventional dollars.
This makes traveling beyond the country's borders challenging for the average citizen, as foreign currency must be obtained without a direct exchange method.

Suwarda

Suwarda is a territory sandwiched between Union and Valare.

After skirmishing over land claims, the two nations buried the notion and instead settled on joint custody of the land.

Suwarda is a series of valleys, flowing waters, thick forests, mountain ranges, and wetlands.

Lauded for its natural beauty, Suwarda makes a significant portion of its income from tourism.
